

What Chefs Make: From a StarChefs survey: "After four...

Updated 8:16 PM EDT, Fri, May 1, 2009

Related Topics: Miami | Culinary Arts | Culture and Lifestyle | Food and Cooking

0 Comments Post a Comment

PRINT EMAIL SHARE BUZZ UP!

From a StarChefs survey: "After four years of steady increase, executive chef salaries were hovering at $77,611 and in 2008 we saw this drop to an average of $74,869. Pastry chef salaries...have taken a 13% nosedive in 2009...male executive chefs make 18% more than female executive chefs...executive chefs get the highest salary in New York State...but Miami is the highest paying city..." [PRNewsWire]

Related Stories

Copyright © 2009 Eater

- Save the Date: 1st Annual Paella Parade

Chris Hondros/Getty Images

A chef-in-training in New York City.