

NEW · YORK · SOCIAL · DIARY

Tuesday On The Town

Tinsley Mortimer at New Yorker's For Children's 8th Annual Fall Gala.

It was a perfect New York day and night for it. Indian summer cool. There was jubilation in some quarters from the Fed's 50 point rate cut, with a ripple effect that ran across the lives of many New Yorkers. And many were out there and in an Up mood last night.

Much going on, and this is only the stuff that I know about. A luncheon at Bloomingdale's -- a Benefit for Lincoln Center Theater's Open Stages education program. Michael Gould (Bloomie's Chairman and CEO), Allison Blinken, Memrie Lewis, Brooke Neidich and Daryl Roth hosted. Plus a Designer Fall/Winter 2007 Fashion Presentation.

At 5:30 Random House and Diane Fisher hosted an Outdoor Terrace Cocktail in somebody's penthouse on East 84th Street -- a book party for Norris Church Mailer and her new novel "Cheap Diamonds."

What you mighta missed. Moving on down to the Mansion on 530 West 28th Street they were having the StarChefs.com Rising Stars Revue. A Gala tasting from 8 to 10:30, savoring the fare of 15 of the top New York chefs. $125 per., the ticket including a pre-event champagne and caviar reception. A portion of the proceeds will be donated to Autism Speaks, the national charity working to change the future for those struggling with Autism.